

AGENDA

Putting Knowledge into Practice: Scientists' Roles in Environmental Policy

Sponsored by a grant from the Center for Environmental Solutions, Duke University
Organizer: Marion Hourdequin, Department of Philosophy, email: meh21@duke.edu

Friday, September 19, 2003
2:00-5:30 pm

2 pm

Introduction/Overview (Lynn Maguire, Marion Hourdequin)
[snacks, drinks available]

2:15-3:00 pm

Developing policy-relevant science (speakers: Jim Clark & Rob Jackson)

3:00-3:45 pm

Navigating policy & management institutions (speakers: Dean Urban, Lynn Maguire)

BREAK

[coffee, tea, pastries]

4:00-4:45 pm

Communicating with the media & policymakers (speakers: Stuart Pimm & Bill Schlesinger)

4:45-5:30 pm

Finding your niche: scientists' roles in environmental decisions (panel: all speakers)

- What roles can scientists play in environmental decisions?
- What roles ought they play?
- How, if at all, does the type of involvement that is possible and appropriate for scientists change over the course of their careers?